LONDON, MAY 22 (REUTER) .-- TO-DAY IN THE HOUSE OF COM-MONS A STATEMENT ON "THE GRAVE SITUATION" WAS MADE BY THE RT. HON. MR. C. R. ATTLEE, DEPUTY LEADER OF THE HOUSE.

The statement was made after the questions had been put forward. "I rise to inform the House," he said, "that the present situation is so critical that the Government is compelled to seek special powers from the House by a Bill to be passed through all its stages in both Houses of Parliament to-day.

"The situation is grave. "Every Member is fully aware of that and every Member is aware of the issues at stake.

The German mechanised forces which pushed ahead of the main army at Cambrai is now reported to be facing the threat of isolation as a result of the re-capture by French, troops of the bomb-torn city of Arras.

Picked shock troops participated in the counter-attack on Arras, which is 55 miles from the coast and 40 miles from Abbeville, the nearest point the German mechanised vanguard succeeded in penetrating towards the coast.

CHAOTIC BATTLE

A chaotic battle is now raging still further in the interior around the strategic city of Cambrai.

A large-scale counter-attack in this sector was ordered by General Wegyand, the "hero of Verdun" and new Supreme Commander of the Allied forces, after he had personally flown over the German lines to inspect the situation.

The furious Allied attack on Cambrai is being taunched from two directions.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH OLD SCHOOL

were precious memories evoked by a public school of which a day-boy could have no experience. The public-school boy, he said, lends a communal life, lives in a world within a world, whereas the day-boy leads a kind of amphibian existence between school and home, so that school can never win more than half his heart. I doubt this, I fancy I should have been considerably less devoted to school if I had been kept a prisoner in the place;

It may be mainly because I was a day-boy that I have always had a prejudice against public schools or boarding schools of any kind. I call this a prejudice, for many of my friends were at public schools and so far as I can see, they suffered little harm by it. They are not more given than other men to wearing nirs of superiority. What does distinguish them, I think, is that self-confidence is commoner among them than among other men. And self-confidence, it not the applicant) will be requirescent to me, is as useful an acquisited to deposit with an authorised tion as a knowledge of legarithms— I never could make out what logarithms were or of Greek accents, sale, the sum of two hundred

Hence, though I should half-like to abolish the public schools, I feel that there is something to be said for them_and_their_Old-School-Tie. tradition. I shall not weep if they disappear, but I shall sympathise with those who do so long as they do not get me into a corner and drool their school reminiscences.

But perhaps the public school will not de after all. It may merely take a new form -better suited to a new age. We are hastening, it is said, towards a classless world in which even public schools will become public property. Even after privilege has been abolished, however, the Old School Tie will, I am sure, still be preserved. After all, it is to be hoped, the world will go on being

By Rajeane Reynolds Olmstead By BARBARA STUART

Here is a letter from a London woman to a friend abroad. It gives a vivid picture of life in war-time Britain—as seen through a woman's eyes.

London, May 1. My dear Conchita,-To everyone's great delight, "daylight saving" has begun a good many weeks earlier than usual this year, In order to shorten the "black-out" period as much as possible.

"Daylight saving" means, as you doubtless know, that we put our clocks forward one hour so as to give ourselves an extra hour of daylight in the evening.

Always of great benefit to workers during the period of summer, you can perhaps imagine what this arrangement means to all of us now? For nearly four months we have crept home in the evenings through dark streets, have closed up our houses like prisons from five o'clock in the afternoon until the next morning, and hustled through our shopping so as to reach home before the darkness falls.

Now all that is over! It is light now until seven o'clock, and with every week that passes, "black-out" time will come later still. People can get home from their work in daylight now: some even have a chance to walk for a while in one of the Parks after their day's work and before it grows dark. No more will the leaving of one's torch at home appear in the light of a major disaster, nor shall we worry if the shops declare that their stock of -torch-batteries-is-exhausted!

Quite apart from its convenience and pleasantness, this new measure will be of the greatest assistance to shop-keepers everywhere, giving them an extra hour in which to sell their goods, unhampered by lighting restrictions, at a time when most people are free to buy.

I took advantage of the first exwalk over Hampstead Heath, a place which I find beautiful at any time of the year and where the air is so fresh and clear that one can hardly believe oneself to be still on the northern outskirts of London.

I was armazed to find how many clusters of "allotments" had been storted in various parts of the Heath.

"Allotment" is the name given to a small plot of land which is leased to a private individual by the owners, (in this case the London County Council), on which he can make his own small garden for vegetables and flowers.

At the present time these allotments will, I imagine, be devoted entirely to vegetables and, perhaps, fruit bushes, since the Government's idea is that, wherever possible, everyone shall grow food of this kind for the use of himself and his family.

Most of the workers appeared to be middle-aged or elderly men, and these laboured slowly, solemnly and with great concentration, speaking seldom, but wearing an my husband. I exhibited my purnir of absorbed content.

I believe that, quite apart from their original purpose of producing more food, these allotments will have a great effect for good upon the health and happiness of their owners.

After my walk, I went to a cinema to see one of the many excellent French films which are becoming It was pronounced a good job. I'm

The way I began was sudden and unexpected. You see from childhood my mother had always made my clothes. Then after I married there came a time when the future eaught up with my wardrobe and left it far behind. What was I to There was no mother to remedy the situation and I couldn't afford to buy the fabrics and styles I was accustomed to in ready-made

Before I realised what had happened I found myself wandering through the fabric section of one of London's leading department stores. A slate blue alpaca caught my eye and I bought four yards. Gulded by fate I selected a pattern. Not till I reached home did I realise these two appalling facts: I didn't know how to sew and I had no tools with which to begin.

Here again fate took a hand in my sartorlal problem—this time via chases to him-dubiously. He stared in amazement. Then he disappeared. The next morning a sewing machine arrived. That was his way of showing that he approved of my breaking out with a

Well. I made the dress and it was a proud day in our household when increasingly popular in London not going to pretend, however, that I didn't tear my hair in despair over it many times. I did. I sailed into a lot of difficulties. And most of months' experience, could have been avoided if only I had known things I'd do to-day-if I were starting that first dress!

Good Rules for a First Dress material. A pattern that's easy to put together makes your first steps so-much-simpler. And it is always important to get the pattern first because that gives you the key to the kind of material most suitable for the design; also the number of

If you are really serious about making your own clothes a well-equipped ewing-room is half the battle in helping you achieve that professlong touch. And the cost is soon taken care of in the money you save over buying the same type of clothes ready-made.

Right now I'm setting aside a certain part of my budget for a number of tools that I crave-all designed to make sewing at home as simple as A.B.C. I'd like a dresmaker's dummy-it would make fitting so much more accurate. I want pinking shears-to save time in finishing the edges of seams. And most particularly I want to add to my stock of sewing-machine. attachments.

I was nover so impressed with how much these attachments for the machine can help as when I saw them at a big sewing-machine company's exhibit in New York. There. were pleaters and hemmers and zigzaggers whirring away like so many fingers. And I thought If only I could have them all I'd never have to fear the homemade look --As it was I did walk away with one -zipper foot, which makes it so easy to use a neat slide fastener.

A Sowing Club is Fun There's one good sewing rule for beginners that I've left to the last, it is the idea of a number of you getting together and taking your first steps in a group. I never thought of this until my friends began lo ask how Todid this and that and before we knew it we had formed a club. We did not begin with dresses at first. Each member brought a garment that needed special attention. But soon patterns and materials for simple bousedrasses and aprons began to appear. And in the course of making these easy things many problems were solved for the benefit of all. This is the advantage of sewing togetter, And it's fun,

WONDER?

How the Sun's Rays Reach Us Without Warming The Intervening Space?

The sun is a globular mass of glowing gases whose surface area is 12.000 times that of the earth. The sun's surface has an estimated temperature of about 10,000* Fahrenheit,

It takes about sight minutes for a tadiation pulse or wave, traveling at 156,000 miles per second to

However, high mountain peaks, while nearer the sun, are notoriously cold, and stratosphere balloonists tell us that the temperature several miles above the earth is still colder.

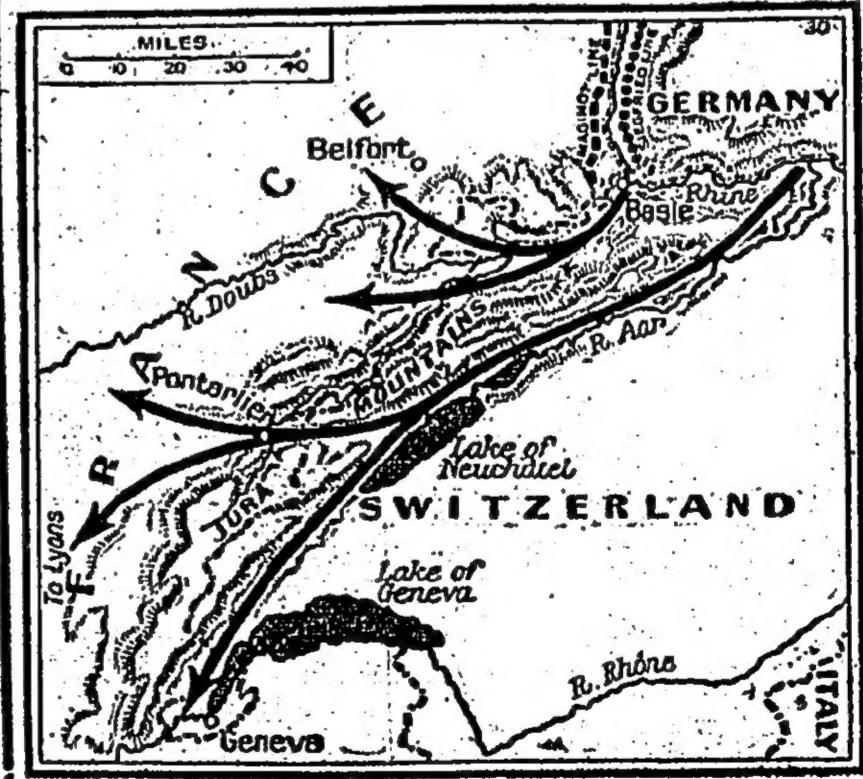

Before we attempt to see why, if the sun warms the carth, it does not also warm the upper-atmosphere and interstellar space, let us first note that there are three waysin which heat may travel. The three ways are: (1) by conduction, the heat being transmitted from warmer to colder parts of an object or from a warm object to a colder object in contact with it; (2) by convection, the heat being transferred by actual movement of a gas or liquid in convection currents; and (3) by radiation, pulses or waves, similar to waves of light, which travel in straight lines and at the speed of light-about 186,000 miles a second.

The sun's heat reaches us only by radiation. It cannot reach us by -conduction, for there is no solid substance between the earth and the sun along which the heat can be conducted. And there are no sun-to-carth movements of any gas or liquid to bring us the sun's heat by convection.

Radiation waves are not themselves hot, but have the capacity of raising the temperature of objects which obsorb them and of parent to them without raising their temperature. Atmospheric air absorbs but less than 1-10 of 1 per cent of the radiation that passes through it coming from the sun, and is consequently very little warmed by the sun's rays.

With little or nothing to absorb heat and be warmed, the sun's rays do not raise the temperature of the intervening space between the sun and the earth to any extent.

GERMAN PLAN OF 1917 TO INVADE SWITZERLAND

IT is reported that the Swiss High-Command-have obtained plans showing that Hitler intends to invade Switzerland. Such a. plan is certainly ready for use if opportunity serves

The Germans prepared a campaign of this kind in 1917. Two columns were to provide the striking force. The northern column. advancing from Basic. was to move down the river valley of the Doubs, curving in to the year of Belfort. By this means the French line would be turned.

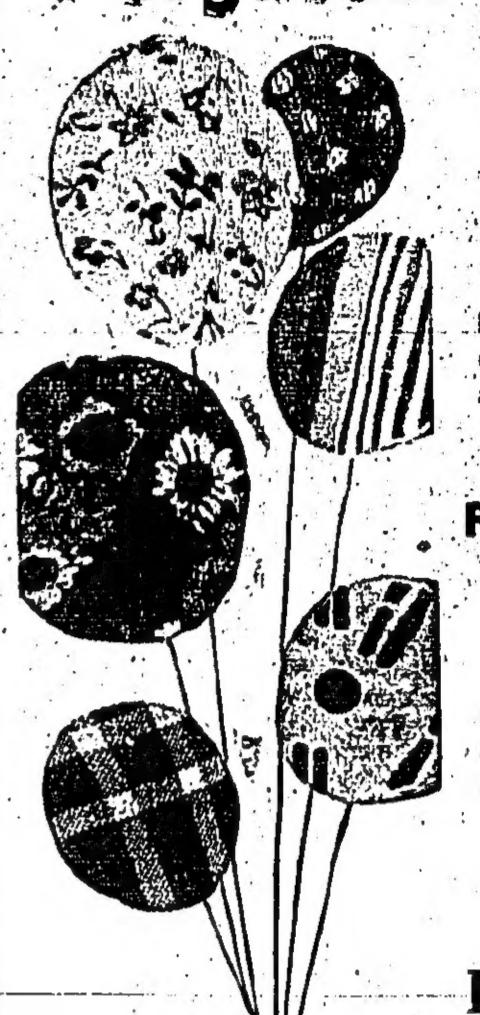

The southern column was to march from near the shore of Lake Constance, along the river valley of the Aar and behind the street of the Jura mountains. By Like Neuclistel time force way to divide. The first part would then cross the pass to Pontarlien. and, leaving a garrison to fink the northern expedition, would drive southward towards Lyons. The second part was to burst across the French frontier at Geneva, and advance down the Rhone valley towards Marseilles.

IN 1917 Italy was the Ally of France. The plan of those days was designed to sever communications between these two countries. To-day the Italians maintain a state of malevolent mentrality towards the French. The German Plan of 1940 is designed to join German and Hallan forces. At the very worst Illifer counts. on having a friendly Italy on the flank of his invading army.

. It must be remembered that in Switzerland, a land of foderated republica with a bonulation of 4,250,000, there are 2,000,000 German-speaking Swiss. It would be surprising if no Nasi sympathisers were among them.

Scraps Material

DON'T throw away the scraps of material left over from your sewing for you are sure to be able to use them to advantage.

It is a good plan to keep various large dress carriers in your "plece" drawer, labelling them cretonne, silk, cotton, woollen and so on outside. Then it is an easy matter to keep the pleces ready for use.

Stribs of crelonne, for instance, make gay borders to tired looking plain curtains.

A length of silk will make a useful

Strips of any width sixteen to eighteen inches long may be joined together, the joins being covered with gay bias binding. These strips will go parallel to the hem of your dress, and plain and pattern material should alternate, if possible.

When you have sufficient number to make the length of apron you need. gather it into a band at the top and hem the lower edge. Such an apron will have an individual look.

Mats And A Runner

.Do you want a new set for your dressing table? Then turn out the "net" carrier and see if you cannot turn these pieces into mats and a runmer, darning the edges round in the right colours for your scheme and lining them to tone.

As for woollen scraps, everyone knows they make good kettle holders, patchwork hol water bottle covers and so on, but they will also make a successful bed cover. All you have to do is to cut the pieces into as wide strips as possible, making them of similar width, though the length does not matter. Join them together and roll the long strip up until you are ready-to-turn-it into-a-bed cover....

Prince Bernhard, who often acts as Queen Wilhelmina's deputy in social matters, has written the introduction as Honorary Chairman of the Central Council for Education and Recreation for

The world stands to-day at pecial crisis in its destinies, and upon France falls the full brunt of the struggle. In the immense conflict which is raging, the greatest and the most momentous in history, the eyes of all free peoples turn towards France and England as their champions. It is ours to bear the standard of right and liberty, their standard and ours, in the forefront of the battle. They watch eagerly to see how we will endure the test. It is far the most terrible and the ost searching to which Britain and France have been subject, and the enemy proclaim that the battle-has already been won. The battle has not been won; the Nazi boast is vain and false. A great concentration of German mechanisation and air power forced the breach in our lines in the frontier region, and through this breach poured, unchallenged for 24 hours, the full force of Nazi might.

But our troops have fallen back fighting where the lines have had to be straightened, or have remained at their posts where the lines are being held. Just so the glorious old Army had to fall back in those equally dangerous and critical first weeks of the last war when the ex-Kaiser in his arrogance ordered his host to trample upon the "contemptible English army." Within a few weeks those "Old Contemptibles" helped to stay and turn back the German armies almost from the walls of Paris, and shattered for ever the German General Staff's visions of rapid and easy conquest.

Our men to-day are sons of the "Old Contemptibles"-men of the same breed and temper. Unlike the heroes who faced and held the fury of the enemy's onslaught in 1914, they are buoyed up by the knowledge that behind them there stand ready the resources of Britain, marshalled by three years of preparation and the determination of the civil population, and all the virgin strength of the Dominions. They will not : prove :less stubborn in defence, or less ready at the right moment to turn upon and drive back

In England there is no panic and no semblance of panic. The British people are fully aware, we believe, that the situation is grave and even critical, but they look at the facts with steady eyes. They had hoped that the great efforts of the French, British and Belgian troops would have checked earlier and completely the onslaught of the enemy, but the very magnitude and novelty of the very slowly, if you wish." Mr. Butler's Reply Mr. R. A. Butler replied in the affirmative and added that on April the special Municipal Administration at Tsingtao had issued regulations removing certain restrictions previously imposed. His Majesty's Government naturally reserved all right of British subjects under these regulations, but up to the present no actual case had heen affected.

Wharfage Facilities

Mr. Robert Morgan also asked Mr. Butler whether he was aware that the refusal of adequate wharfage facilities at Tsingtao still continues.

Mr. Morgan also asked whether Mr. I vance. Butler was aware that the additional herths understood to have been opened to third Power vessels on January 13 were not available until March 20, and then only to a limited extent heavy, especially among the Alpine although they had been frequently vacant during that period.

Mr. Morgan also wanted to know whether Mr. Butler would lay on the tuble a report on the whole question of discrimination, by the Japanese authorities against British shipping.

Change For Better Mr. Butler, in reply, said that in recent weeks some three-fourths of all British vessels calling at Tsingiao had been allotted berths at the wharves. The additional berths opened in January were made available to British ships for the first time on May

LONDON, May.—One effect of the war may be that spectators deprived of their county championship games may turn to watching Club cricket, which promises to be played on a big scale, and it is possible that the spectators so drawn Tennis. may remain watching Club games after the war is over.

The high standard of play in Club cricket is rarely recognised. Most people look on English cricket as an affair of counties, with a few Clubs playing somewhere out of the usual line of vision, but these week-end games provide bright play and quick results in comparison to the sometimes dull play of the three-day county matches.

The position is not comparable to that of Australia, where the mainstay of the game is the Nurmi Sees Club programme in which all the leading players take part. A player makes his name with a Club before he is noticed for. selection by his State for inclusion in the Sheffield Shield matches.

In England, the county if the Club, and only members of county Clubs ever see first class cricket. One of the most serious objections to the English plan is that blg honours only go to those who can devote virtually the whole of the summer to cricket, and the number of young men in that position is decreasing.

It would quicken the interest of the younger players if they knew they had a chance of recognition, instead of being condomned to a .life-time of nothing but Club cricket because they did not get the neces against Don Lash Sunday for the sary initial start.

...At .. one .. time wealthy : amateurs were common enough, but now-most people have to work, and few can afford to spend in playing cricket the time during which they might minute mile beyond the limit of be laying the foundations of success cite, deliberate English. in their business careers.

DAUGHTER FOR DEAN OF CANTERBURY

A daughter was born at The Deanery. Canterbury, recently to Mrs. Hewlett Johnson, wife of the Dean of Canterbury. Mother and child are both reported to be doing well. The child, which weighs $141b., will be named Mary Kerlah.

The Dean-who is sixty-fiveand his wife were married in October, 1938, at Slokesay, Shropshire, details being kept'a close secret till after the ceremony. Mrs, Johnson is thirty-three.

She was formerly Miss Noel Mary Edwards, daughter of the late Rev. G. Z. Edwards, o Formby (Lancs), and is a second cousin of the dean, She is a talented artist, and before her marriage often acted as hostens, at the deanery.

 Scots Isle Ban on Unity

MISS UNITY MITFORD, Lord Redesdale's daughter, who recently returned from Germany, has been refused permission to live on the island of Inch Kenneth, which is within the area of Scotland prohibited to all except authorised persons.

This announcement was made by the War Minister, in a written reply the roof. to Mr. Davidson (Lab., Maryhill). Inch Kenneth is a small island off the coast of Mull and was bought by Lord Redesdale about 18 months

Since her return from Germany Miss Mitford, who before the war often spoke of her admiration for M. Ryan, portly Roman Catholic | Hitler, has been staying at her priest, climbed on to a barricade of father's home at High Wycombe.

She is stated to be making a good recovery from the shot wound she received in mysterious circumstances in Germany. She was to be taken to Inch Kenneth to complete her convalescence. A member of the family said: "The W statement in the Home appears to dispose of the matter. There is no reason to discuss it jurther."

You Can Reform

THIRTY-YEAR-OLD Herbert Charles Ridley stood in the dock at Birmingham from which, in 1930, he heard the death sentence passed upon him.

He pleaded guilty to three charges of housebreaking, and asked for 29 other offences to be taken into considertion.

Ridley, a motor-driver, was sentenced to twelve months hard labour.

Detective Inspector Hewins said after being sentenced to death Ridley was reprieved and the sentence commuted to penal servitude for life. He was released on licence in December, 1935, and returned to his Since then he had appeared before the courts for felony. He quarrelled frequently with his wife, and was now separated from her. In passing sentence, the Recorder, Mr. H. J. Wallington, sald it was plain that Ridley could lead an ionest, decent life if he wished. "Your record is a very bad one,"

"One would have thought that man with your mental and physical capacity-would have been only too glad to show appreciation that he was at liberty and would have helped his wife and children.

"I have got a feeling that bad as your make up is you can reform.

Ridley and another man, Victor Edward Belts, were found guilty of killing a bank messenger, who was robbed of a bag containing £900. (Belts was executed.

PARIS, MAY 23 (UP).—ALTHOUGH IT IS TOO EARLY YET TO PROPHESY. IT GERMAN BLITZKRIEG TO THE COAST HAS BEEN APPEARS THAT THE HALTED ALMOST WITHIN SIGHT OF ITS OBJECTIVE.

This hopeful news comes three days after the earlier drive on Paris had been halted and flung back at the Aisne. ISOLATION THREAT

The German mechanised forces which pushed ahead of the main army at Cambrai is now reported to be facing the threat of isolation as a result of the re-capture by French troops of the bomb-torn city of Arras.

Picked shock troops participated in the counter-attack on Arras, which is 55 miles from the coast and 40 miles from Abbeville, the nearest point the German mechanised vanguard succeeded in penetrating towards the coast. CHAOTIC BATTLE A chaotic battle is now raging still further in the interior around the strategic city of Cambrai. A large-scale counter-attack in this sector was ordered by General Weygand, the new Supreme Commander of the Allied forces, after he had personally flown over the German lines to inspect the situation. FURIOUS ATTACKS The furious Allied attack on Cambrai is being

Simultaneously, the British and Belgian forces which the Germans earlier claimed had been effectively surrounded and bottled in the Valenciennes area launched a large-scale attack from the north, smashing into the right flank of the invaders just north of Cambrai.

SITUATION SUMMARISED

The situation is therefore as follows:

Far from surrounding the British and Belgian forces in the north, the Germans who have pushed west of Cambrai are now in imminent danger of being pinched off and surrounded.

Sir John explained that the Bill was designed to regularise the legal position and to fill some possible loopholes in the existing emergency

One Important point was that it was thought desirable to make a provision to enable enemy aliens to be tricd in suitable cases by court martials.

Trial By Jury Any British subject or neutral allen, however, would retain the right to trial by jury.

Mr. G. M. Garro-Jones interposed with a question about enemy aliens who possibly arrive in uniform. 'Sir John Anderson' said that if the country were invaded and the ordinary processes of law ceased to function, in areas of active military operations there should be available the power for dealing effectively with cases of treachery as covered by the present Bill.

The measure, he said, was designed to meet such a situation, The Rt. Hon. Mr. J. R. Clynes (Labour) and Mr. G. Le M. Mander (Liberal) supported the Bill.

London, May 4. My dear Conchita, To overysaving" has begun a good many weeks earlier than usual this year, in order to shorten the "binck-out" period as much as possible.

"Daylight saving" meons, as you doubtless know, that we put our clocks forward one hour so as to give ourselves an extra hour of daylight in the evening.

Always of great benefit to workers during the period of summer, you can perhaps ismagine what this arrangement means to all of us now? For nearly four months we have crept home in the evenings through dark streets, have closed up our houses like prisons from five o'clock in the afternoon until the next morning, and hustled through our shopping so as to reach home before the darkness falls.

Now all that is over! It is light now until seven o'clock, and with every week that passes, "black-out" time will come later still. People can get home from their work in daylight now; some even have a chance to walk for a while in one of the Parks after their day's work and before it grows dark. . No more will the leaving of one's torch at home appear in the light of a major disaster, nor shall we worry if the shops declare that their stock of torch batteries is exhausted!

Quite apart from its convenience and pleasaniness, this new measure will be of the greatest assistance to shop-keepers everywhere, giving them an extra hour in which to sell their goods, unhampered by lighting restrictions, at a time when most people are free to buy.

I took advantage of the first extra hour of daylight to prolong a walk over Hampstead Heath, place which I find beautiful at any time of the year and where the air is so fresh and clear that one still on the northern outskirts of

I was amazed to find how many clusters of "allotments" had been started in various parts of the

"Allotment" is the name given to a small plot of land which is leased to a private individual by the owners, (in this case the London County Council), on which he can make his own small garden for vegetables and flowers.

At the present time these allotments will, I imagine, be devoted entirely to vegetables and, perhaps fruit bushes, since the Government's idea is that, wherever possible, everyone shall grow food of this kind for the use of himself and his family.

Most of the workers appeared to be middle-aged or elderly men, and these inboured slowly, solemnly and with great concentration, speaking seldom, but wenring an nir of absorbed content.

I believe that, quite apart from their original purpose of producing more food, these allotments will have a great effect for good upon the health and happiness of their owners.

After my walk, I went to a cinema to see one of the many excellent French films which are becoming increasingly popular in London

I also saw a very good news-reel of the march through London of the crews of the British warships Ajax and Exeter on their way to be entertained at the Guildhall where a banquet was given to honour their glorious victory, with the Achilles, over the German battleship "Admiral Graf Spee."

You, of course, will have seen this news-reel also, and will remember how fit and happy they all looked and what a tremendous I Good Rules for a First Dress welcome they received from the enormous and wildly enthusiastle crowd lining the route!

I have just read an account of how the officers and crews of both ships have experienced the amusing and thrilling experience of becoming genuine film stars!

A' British company is making a film of the whole story of the River Plate battle, and the men of the Ajax and Exeter acted all over again, in front of the cameras, the parts they had actually played in the historic action against the Graf Spec. It appears that the film director, armed with an Admirally permit, first approached the captain of the Ajax for permission to shoot the film scenes about distill tions in the pattern envelope be of all. Yet fore I laid them on the material for that dress was a success and all the clothes I've made since-pajamas for my husband, more dresses, a suit and a cont for my- make in your instruction. self-have turned out equally well.

The way I began was sudden and unexpected. You see from childhood my mother had always made my clothes. Then after I married there came a time when the future enught up with my wardrobe and left it far behind. What was I to it is easy to draw a line through do? There was no mother to the perforations and measure them remedy the situation and I couldn't afford to buy the fabrics and styles I was accustomed to in ready-made

Before I realised what had hap- better cut dress. pened I found myself wandering through the fabric section of one of London's leading department stores. A slate blue alpaca eaught my eye and I bought four yards. Guided by fate I selected a pattern. Not till I reached home did I realise these two appalling facts: I didn't know how to sew and I had no tools with which to begin.

Here again fate took a hand in my sartorial problem—this time via my husband. I exhibited my purchases to him-dubiously. He stared in amazement. Then he disappeared. The next morning a sewing machine arrived. That was his way of showing that he approved of my breaking out with a sewing germ.

Well, I made the dress and it was a proud day in our household when it was pronounced a good job. I'm not going to pretend, however, that I didn't tear my hair in despair over it many times. I did. I sailed into n lot of difficulties. And most of them, I realise now after eleven months' experience, could have been avoided if only I had known a few simple rules. Here are the things I'd do to-day-if I were starting that first dress:

1. I'd get a beginner's pattern attachments. and get it first before a bought my material. A pattern that's easy to put together makes your first steps so much simpler. And it is always. There's one good sewing rule important to get the pattern first for beginners that I've left to the because that gives you the key to last. It is the idea of a number the kind of material most suitable of you getting together and taking for the design; also the number of your first steps in a group. I never yards required.

. 2. I'd choose a material with gan to ask how I did this and that body. You'll find a firmly woven and before we knew it we had fabric, whether it's wool, rayon, formed a club. We did not begin cotton or slik, much easier to handle with dresses at first. Each member than a filmsy one. WONDER? How the Sun's Rays Reach Us Without Warming.

The Intervening Space?

The sun is a globular mass of glowing gases whose surface area is 12,000 times that of the earth. The sun's surface has an estimated temperature about 10,000° Fahrenbeit.

at 180,000 miles or wave, traveling to read the earth from the sun However, high mountain penks, while nearer the sun, are notoriously cold, and stratosphere balloonists tell us that the temperature several miles above the earth is still colder.

Before we attempt to see why, if the sun warms the earth, it does not also warm the 'upper-atmosphere and interstellar space, let us first note that there are three ways in which heat may travel. The three ways are: (1) by conduction, the heat being transmitted from . warmer to colder parts of an object or from a warm object to a colder object in contact with it; (2) by convection, the heat being transferred by actual movement of a gas or liquid in convection currents; and (3) by radiation, pulses or waves, similar to waves of light, which travel in straight lines and at the speed of light-about 108,000 miles a second.

The sun's heat reaches us only by radiation. It cannot reach us by conduction, for there is no solid substance between the earth and the sun along which the heat can be_conducted,__And__there-are-nosun-to-earth movements of any gas or liquid to bring us the sun's heat by convection.

Radiation waves are not themselves hot, but have the capacity of raising the temperature of objects which absorb them and of passing through substances transparent to them without raising their temperature. Atmospheric air absorbs but less than 1-10 of 1 per cent of the radiation that passes through it coming from the sun, and is consequently very little warmed by the sun's rays. .

With little or nothing to absorb heat and be warmed, the sun's rays -do-not raise-the-temperature-of-theintervening space between the sun and the earth to any extent.

GERMAN PLAN OF 1917 TOINVADE SWITZERLAND

II is reported that the Swiss High Command have obtained Dians mowing that:Hitler-intende to invade Switzerland. Such a plati is certainly ready for use if opportunity serves.

The Germans prepared a campaign of this kind in 1917. Two columns were to provide the striking force. The northern column, advancing from Hasle, was to move down the river valley of the Doubs, ourving in to the rear of Bellort, By a this means the French line would be turned.

The southern column was to march "from mear the shore of Lake Constance, along the river valley of the Aar and behind the screen of the Jura mountains. By Lake Neuchatel this force was to divide. The first part would then cross the pass to Pontarilen. mnd, leaving a guerison to flank the northern expedition, would drive southward towards Lyons. The second part was to burst scross the French frontier at Geneva, and advance down the Rhone-valley towards Marseilles:

and the state of the region of the state of IN- 1917 Italy was the Ally of France. "The plan of those days was desirted to sever communications between these two countries. To-day the Rialians maintain a state of malevolette neutrality towards the French? The German Plan of 1940 is designed to join German and Italian forces. At the Very/worst Hitler counts on having a friendly Italy on the fiank of his invading army.

It must be remembered that in Switzerland, a land of federated republics' with a population of 4,250,000, there are 2,000,000 German-speaking Swiss. It would De suprilie if no Navi symbathisers were among them.

Scraps Of Material

DON'T throw away the scraps of material left over from your sowing for you are sure to be able to use them to advantage.

It is a good plan to keep various large dress carriers in your "plece" drawer, labelling them cretonne, allic, cotton, woollen and so on outside. Then it is an easy matter to keep the pieces ready for use.

Strips of cretonne, for instance, make gay borders to tired looking plain curtains. A length of silk will make a useful

Strips of any width sixteen to eighteen inches long may be joined

Mats. And A Runner

Do you want a new set for your dressing table? Then turn out the "net" carrier and see if you cannot turn these pieces into mats and a runner, darning the edges round in the right colours for your scheme and lining them to tone.

As for woollen scraps, everyone knows they make good kettle holders, patchwork hot water bottle covers and so on, but they will also make a successful bed cover. All you have to do is to cut the pieces into as wide strips as possible, making them of similar width, though the length does not malter. Join them together and roll the long strip up until you are rendy to turn it into a bed cover

Here is another massage hint which many women don't seem to know. Gentle massage round the face from car to car, at the edge of the hair line, strengthens the face muscles and discourages that sagging which leads to double chin.

Another treatment for slack chin is this. Bit bolt upright, lift the head and push the chin forward so that the muscles of the neck are taut. Bend the fingers, then massage with each hand alternately (using the top side of the fingers) from chin to throat. Cream the hands well for this. Dry skins generally absorb a large part of the cream applied, but at this time of the year most skins are rather "starved," so be generous with the skin food, Wipe off all cream remaining when the massage is done, then splash your face with astringent lotion or

Faith

The world stands to-day at special crisis in its destinies, and upon France falls the full brunt of the-struggle,-In-the-immense-confliet which is raging, the greatest and the most momentous in history, the eyes of all free peoples turn towards France and England as their champions. It is ours to bear the standard of right and liberty, their standard-and-ours,-in-the-forefront of the battle. They watch eagerly to see how we will endure the test It is for the most terrible and the most searching to which Britain and France, have been subject, and the enemy proclaim that the battle has already been won. The battle has not been won; the Nazi boast is vain and false. A great concentration o German mechanisation and air power forced the breach in our lines in the frontier_region, and through this breach poured, unchallenged for 24 hours, the full force of Nazi might. But our troops have fallen back fighting where the lines have had to be straightened, or have remained at their posts where the lines are being held. Just so the glorious old Army had to fall back in those equally dangerous and critical first weeks of the last war when the ex-Kaiser in his arrogance ordered his host to trample upon the "contemptible English nrmy." Within a few weeks those "Old Contemptibles" helped to stay and turn back the German armies almost from the walls of Paris, and shattered for ever the German General Staff's visions of rapid and easy conquest. Our men to-day are sons of the "Old Contemptibles"—men of the same breed and temper. Unlike the heroes who faced and held the fury of the enemy's onslaught in 1914, they are buoyed up by the knowledge that behind them there stand ready the resources of Britain, marshalled by three years of preparation and the determination of the civil population, and all the whitin strength of the Dominions. They will not prove less stubborn in defence, or less ready at the right moment to turn upon and drive back the foe.

In England there is no panic and no semblance of panie. The British people are fully aware, we believe, that the situation is grave and even critical, but they look at the facts with steady eyes. They had hoped that the great efforts of the French, British and Belgian troops would have checked earlier and completely the onslaught of the enemy, but the very magnitude and novelty of the Blitzkrieg rendered inevitable the withdrawal to lines disappointingly far behind the frontier and desperately-near-England's coast.

We in Hongkong should look upon the position in a sober practical fashion. The Ailles have had s heavy blow; the people know it, and there is no use attempting to hide it, or to minimise what has occurred; as has been niggested to us by more than one person;

THIRTY-YEAR-OLD Herbert Charles Ridley stood in the dock at Birmingham from which, in 1930, he heard the death sentence passed upon him.

He pleaded guilty to three charges of housebreaking, and asked for 29 other offences to be taken into considertion.

Ridley; a motor-driver, was sen-tenced to twelve months hard labour.

Detective Inspector Hewins said after being sentenced to death Ridley was reprieved and the sentence commuted to penal servitude for life. He was released on licence in December, 1935, and returned to his Since then he had appeared before the courts for felony. He quarrelled frequently with his wife, and was now separated from her. In passing sentence, the Recorder, Mr. H. J. Wallington, said it was plain that Ridley could lead an honest, decent life if he wished.

"Your record is a very bad one," he said. "One would have thought that a man with your mental and physical capacity would have been only too glad to show appreciation that he was at liberty and would have helped his wife and children.

"I have got a feeling that bad as your make up is you can reform. Ridley, and another man, Victor

Edward Belts, were found guilty of killing a bank messenger, who was robbed of a bag containing £900. Belts was executed.

Questions On Tsingtao

Labour M.P. And British Interests

LONDON, May 22 (Reuter) -In the House of Commons today, Mr. Robert Morgan asked impaired by the hard struggle of the whether Mr. R. A. Butler's attention had been called to the regulations published on March 30 by the Tsingtao Municipal Council

.These regulations, he said, empowered the Municipality to commandeer land in the district and forbade-the transfer-of-ownership of land without permission of the nuthorities.

He asked what steps had been taken to protect British interests

Mr. Butler's Reply
Mr. R. A. Butler replied in the offirmative and added that on April the special Municipal Administration at Tsingtoo had issued regulations removing certain restrictions previously-imposed.-

His Majesty's Government naturally reserved all right of British subjects under these regulations, but up to the present no actual case had arisen in which British interests had heen affected.

Wharfago Facilities Mr. Robert Morgan also asked Mr. Butler whether he was aware that the refusal of adequate wharfage facilities at Tsingtao still continues. Mr. Morgan also asked whether Mr. Butler was aware that the additional herths understood to have been opened to third Power vessels on January 13 were not available until March 20, and then only to a limited extent although they had been frequently vacant during that period. Mr. Morgan also wanted to know whether Mr. Butler would lay on the table a report on the whole question of discrimination by the Japanese authorities against British shipping. Chango For Better

Mr. Butler, in reply, said that in recent weeks some three-fourths of all British vessels calling at Taingiao had been allotted berths at the wharves. The additional berths opened in January were made available to British ships for the first time on May 4 and 5. Though the situation cannot be described as satisfactory, there is a noticeable change for the better in the treatment of Third Power nationals and shipping.

As regards the last part of the question, full information had been given in the House from time to time and under tertain circumstances Lord Halifax was not prepared to lay further papers.

Rotterdam's 50,000 Casualties

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH" ROTTERDAM, May 22 (UP).—At least one square mile of the principal business and old residential district of Rotterdam is a mass of shambles as a result of the German bombings.

Reliable reports put the number of casualties as high as competent neutral sources. The official German announcement endeavoured to show that only 300 were killed, but an Air Force captain said that there were "probably several thousand corpses."

Buildings, some of them from two to ten stories, are now blasted heaps. The general picture is that of a district levelled by a cyclone.

Hitler's Boundless Lust

To-day the situation perhaps is graver than at any time in the last war. That does not mean that defeat is on the horizon, but the gravity of the position does mean that we must steel ourselves for news of reverse, and that all the dangers of war have been brought much closer to those whose duty lies in the British Isles.

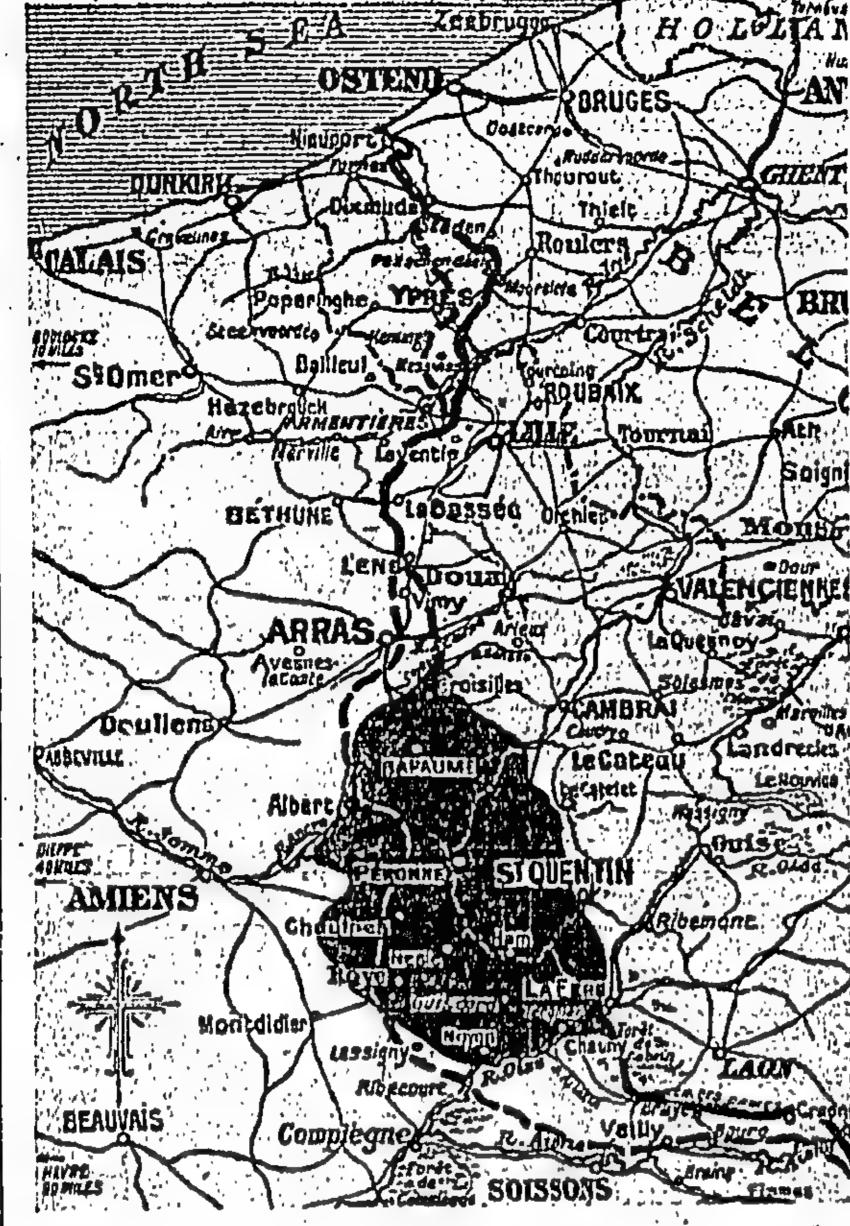

"We know that there are no bounds to Hitler's lust for world power," sald Mr. Duff-Cooper, "and we know in what contempt he holds all non-German races and peoples, especially those of Africa and Asia;

MAP ILLUSTRATING yesterday's fighting. The German mechanised vanguard is reported to be still at Abbeville, where it is cut off from the German rear. Arras has reverted to the Allies and heavy fighting is taking place around Cambrai, which the French are attacking from the south and west and the British and Belgian from the north. As a comparison, the situation on the previous day is also shown by the black portion of the map, which represents the point of extreme penetration of the main German forces, following the mechanised units which had penetrated firstly to Arras and, secondly, through Amiens to Abbeville. NAZIS TRAPPED ON TWO SIDES

By RALPH HEINZEN "UNITED PRESS" STAFF CORRESPONDENT

PARIS, May 23 (UP).—The great Allied armies of the north and centre last night massed their overwhelming forces on the thin flanks of the Germans on the plains of Picardy, between the Somme and Escaut River.

Slowly but surely, the two Allied armies are now squeezing the long, thin German line—much the same as a giant press crushes anything placed between its jaws —as General Weygand, flying across the German lines to hasten the disposition of his troops, began the application of Marshal Foch's elementary principle of tactics—"the best defence is a strong attack."

The anxiety with which the German High Command is viewing the latest Allied operation is indicated by the feverish manner in which they are attempting to pour reinforcements into the deepest part of the pocket at present held only by small but vigorously aggressive motorised units.

Severe Blow To Nazis

The re-capture of Arras by the Allies is a severe blow to the Germays, for it immediately nullifies the earlier mechanised drive towards the Channel, which took the German "I know that the people of the motor-cycle vanguard to Abbeville British . FAVOIT

By MILES HANDLER

(UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT)

PARIS, MAY 23 (UP).—ALTHOUGH IT IS TOO EARLY YET TO PROPHESY, IT GERMAN BLITZKRIEG TO THE COAST HAS BEEN SIGHT OF ITS OBJECTIVE. HALTED ALMOST WITHIN

ISOLATION THREAT

The German mechanised forces which pushed ahead of the main army at Cambrai is now reported to be facing the threat of isolation as a result of the re-capture by French troops of the bomb-torn city of Arras.

Picked shock troops participated in the counter-attack on Arras, which is 55 miles from the coast and 40 miles from Abbeville, the nearest point the German mechanised vanguard succeeded in penetrating towards the coast.

CHAOTIC BATTLE

A chaotic battle is now raging still further in the interior around the strategic city of Cambrai.

A large-scale counter-attack in this sector was tered on bridges, railway juncordered by General Weygand, the new Supreme Commander of the Allied forces, after he had personally flown over the German lines to inspect the situation.

FURIOUS ATTACKS

The furious Allied attack on Cambrai is being engagements were fought and at least launched from two directions.

The French forces are attacking from the south and west.

Simultaneously, the British and Belgian forces which the Germans earlier claimed had been effectively surrounded and bottled in the Valenciennes area launched a large-scale attack from the north, smashing into the right flank of the invaders just north of Cambrai.

SITUATION SUMMARISED

The situation is therefore as follows:

Far from surrounding the British and Belgian forces in the north, the Germans who have pushed west of Cambrai are now in imminent danger of being pinched off and surrounded.

The German lines to Amiens and other points west of Cambrai are being maintained through this narrow bottleneck which is being threatened on both sides by the

NAZIS CUT OFF

As a result of the recapture by the French of Arras, the small detachment of German troops operating westwards in the vicinity of Abbeville are, says a French report, already sliced off from their rear.

The French report claims that the left bank of the Somme below Amiens'ls now being firmly held behind fortified positions. Reports from Berlin claim that the foothold along the English Channel, but this is regarded sceptically in General Giraud , is in command of the coalition of British, French, Belgian and Dutch armies in the north.

General Weygand's plans are being kept secret, but most military analysis anticipate some big effort within the next 48 hours.

The four Allied armies massed on the Escaut River fought intensely and continually to cover the strategic retreat from Belgium, but there is no continuous front and no actual contact with the enemy.

Bulk Of Naxis Held

The bulk of the German army has been held east of Cambral and west of the pivotal city. The Germans have only swift moving light elements which dash around the countryside sprending destruction mainly among the civilians.

These German mechanised forces are insufficient in number to stand up to a frontal fight, and there were barely 50 tanks and light cars trying to hold Arras when the Allies recaptured the city.

It is estimated that Amiens is held by less than 5,000 German troops, and there should be no difficulty in re-

My dear Conchita To everydelight, "daylight saving" has begun a good many weeks earlier than usual this year. in order to shorten the "black-out" period as much as possible.

"Daylight saving" means, as you doubtless know, that we put our clocks forward one hour so as to give ourselves an extra hour of daylight in the evening.

Always of great benefit to workers during the period of summer, you can perhaps imagine what this arrangement means to all of us now? For nearly four months we have crept home in the evenings through dark streets, have closed up our houses like prisons from five o'clock in the afternoon until the next morning, and hustled through our shopping so as to reach home before the darkness falls.

Now all that is over! It is light now until seven o'clock, and with every week that passes, "black-out" time will come later still. People can get home from their work in daylight now: some even have a change to walk for a while in one of the Parks after their day's work and before it grows dark. No more will the leaving of one's torch, at home appear in the light of a major disaster, nor shall we worry if the shops declare that their stock of torch batteries is exhausted!

Quite apart from its convenience and pleasantness, this new measure will be of the greatest assistance to shop-keepers everywhere, giving them an extra hour in which to sell their goods. unhampered-by-light-ing restrictions, at a time when most people are free to buy.

t took advantage of the first extra hour of daylight to prolong a walk over Hampstead Heath, a place which I find beautiful at any time of the year and where the pir is so fresh and clear that one can hardly believe oneself to be still on the northern outskirts of

I was amazed to find how many clusters of "allotments" had been started in various parts of the Heath.

"Allotment" is the name given to a small plot of land which is leased to a private individual by the owners, (in this case the London County Council), on which he can make his own small garden for vegetables and flowers.

At the present time these allotments will. I imagine, be devoted entirely to vegetables and, perhaps, bushes, since the Government's idea is that, wherever possible, everyone shall grow food of this kind for the use of himself and his family.

Most of the workers appeared to be middle-aged or elderly men, and these laboured slowly, solemnly and with great concentration, speaking seldom, but wearing an nir of absorbed content.

I believe that, quite apart from their original purpose of producing more food, these allotments will have a great effect for good upon the health and happiness of their owners,

After my walk, I went to a cinema to see one of the many excellent French films which are becoming increasingly popular in London

I also saw a very good news-reel of the march through London of the crews of the British warships Ajax and Exeter on their way to be entertained at the Guildhall where a banquet was given honour their glorious victory, with the Achillos, over the German battleship "Admiral Graf Spee."

You, of course, will have seen this news-reel also, and will remember how fit and happy they all looked and what a tremendous welcome they received from the enormous and wildly enthusiastic crowd-lining the routel

I have just read an account of how the officers and crews of both ships have experienced the amusing and thrilling experience of becoming genuine, film stars!

A British company is making as film of the whole story of the River Plate; buttle, and the men of the fabric, whether it's wool, rayon, Ajax and Exeter neted all over cotton or silk, much easier to handle again, in front of the cameras, the than a flimmy one. THIS may sound like a sweeping arm myself with a beginner's sewstatement but it's a true one: any ing book to serve as a kind of dicwoman can sew. And that means you. My own experience proves It. I didn't know what the word "basting", meant when I started out to make my first dress. Yet that_dress_was_a_success_and_all_ the clothes I've made since—pajames for my husband, more dresses, a suit and a coat for myself-have turned out equally well.

The way I began was sudden and unexpected. You see from childhond my mother had always made my clothes. Then after I married there came a time when the future caught up with my wardrobe and left it far behind. What was I to do? There was no mother to remedy the situation and I couldn't afford to buy the fabrics and styles I was accustomed to in ready-made dresses.

Before I realised what had happened I found myself wandering through the fabric section of one of London's leading department stores. A slate blue alpaca caught my eye and I bought four yards. Guided by fate I selected a pattern. Not till I reached home did I realise these two appalling facts: I didn't know how to sew and I had no loois with which to begin.

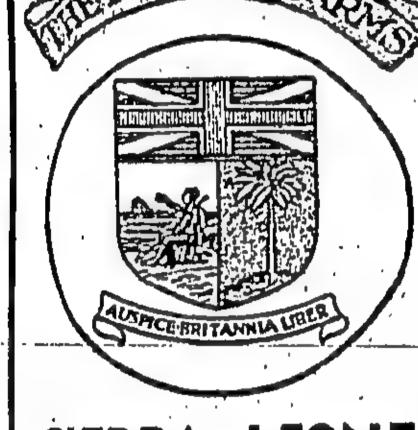

. Here again fate took a hand in my sartorial problem—this time via my husband. I exhibited my purchases to him-dublously. He stored in amazement. Then he disappeared. The next morning a sewing machine arrived. That was his way of showing that he approved of my breaking out with a sewing germ. Well. I made the dress and it was a proud day in our household when it was pronounced a good job. I'm not going to pretend, however, that I didn't tear my hair in despair over it many times. I did. I salled into a lot of difficulties. And most of them. I realise now after eleven months' experience, could have been avoided if only I had known a few simple rules. Here are the things I'd do to-day-if I were starting that first dress: Good Rules for a First Dress I. I'd get a beginner's patiern and got it first before I bought my material. A pattern that's easy to put together makes your first steps so much simpler. And it is always Important to get the pattern first because that gives you the key to the kind of material most suitable for the design; also the number of yards required.

YOU WONDER?

How the Sun's Rays Reach Us Without Warming . The Intervening Space?

The sun is a globular mass of glowing gases whose surface area is 12,000 times that of the earth The sun's surface has an estimated temperature of about 10,000° Fahrenhelt.

It takes about eight inimutes for a tadiation pulse or wave, traveling at 150,000 miles per second to

However, high mountain peaks, while hearer the sun, are notoriously cold, and stratosphere balloonists tell us that the temperature several miles above the earth is still colder.

Before we attempt to see why, if the sun warms the earth, it does not also warm the upper-atmosphere and interstellar space, let us first note that there are three ways in which heat may travel. The three ways are: (1) by conduction, the heat being transmitted from warmer to colder parts of an object or from a warm object to a colder object in contact with it; (2) by convection, the heat being transferred by actual movement of a gas or liquid in convection currents; and (3) by radiation, pulses or waves, similar to waves of light, which travel in straight lines and at the speed of light-about 186,000 miles a second.

The sun's heat reaches us only by radiation. It cannot reach us by conduction, for there is no solidsubstance between the earth and the sun along which the heat can be conducted. And there are no sun-to-earth movements of any gas. or liquid to bring us the sun's heat by convection.

Radiation waves are not themselves hot, but have the capacity of raising the temperature of objects which absorb them and of passing through substances transparent to them without raising their temperature. Atmospheric air absorbs but less than 1-10 of 1 per cent of the radiation that passes through it coming from the sun, and is consequently very little warmed by the sun's rays.

With little or nothing to absorb heat and be warmed, the sun's rays do not raise the temperature of the intervening space between the sun and the earth to any extent.

time in-finishing the odges of senms. -- IT-is-reported_that_the_Swits. Iligh Command have obtained plans showing that Hitler intends to invade Switzerland. Such a plan is certainly ready for use, if opportunity serves.

The Germana prepared a campaign of this kind in 1917. Two columns were to provide the striking force. The northern column, advancing from Basic, was to move down the river valley of the Doubs, curving in to the roar of Belfort. By this means the French line would be turned. The southern column was to march from near the shore of Lake Constance, along the river valley of the Aar and behind the "Rerection of the Jura - mountains. By Lake Nenchatel this force was to divide. The first part would then cross the pass to Pontarlien, and, leaving a garrison to flank

the morthern compedition, would drive southward towards Lyons. The second part was to burst across the French frontier at Geneva, and advance down the Rhone valley towards Marseilles.

IN 1917 Italy was the Ally of France. The plan of those days was designed to sever communicallons between these two counirles. To-day the Italians mainlain a state of malevolent neutra-Illy towards the French. The German Plan of 1940 is designed to join German and Rallan forces. At the very worst littler counts? on having a friendly lialy on the flank of his invading army.

It must be remembered that in Switzerland, a Javid of federated. republica with a population of 4,250,000, there are 3,000,000 German-speaking Swiss. It would be susprising if no Naul sympathisers were among them.

Do, you want a new set for your dressing table? Then turn out the "net" carrier and see if you cannot turn these pieces into mats and a runner, darning the edges round in the right colours for your scheme and lining them to tone.

As for woollen scraps, everyone knows they make good kettle holders, patchwork hot water bottle covers and so on, but they will also make a successful bed cover. All you have to do is to cut the pieces into as wide strips as possible, making them of similar width, though the length does not matter. Join them together and roll the long strip up until you are rendy to turn it into a bed cover,

CHAOS ON WESTERN FRONT

LONDON, May 22 (Reuter).—An Air Ministry bulletin describing Tuesday's attacks on the spearhead of the German thrust, says that from the air the head of the German advance presented at times a picture of utter chaos.

Often bombing was made impossible because of the difficulty of identifying the enemy columns among the stream of refugees overtaken by the enemy's rapid advance.

On one enemy road, 40 to 50 attacked military objectives and German lorries were seen to be key points along the Rhine and in hopelessly intermingled with an announcement by the Air Minispedestrians, ambulances, civilian try. tradesmen's vans and bicycles.

Faith

The world stands to-day at special crisis in its destinies, and upon France falls the full brunt of the struggle. In the immense conflict which is raging, the greatest and the most momentous in history, the eyes of all free peoples turn towards France and England as their champions. It is ours to bear the standard of right and liberty, their standard and ours, in the forefront of the battle. They watch eagerly to see how we will endure the test, It is far the most terrible and the most searching to which Britain and France-have-been-subject,-and-the enemy proclaim that the battle has already been won. The battle has not been won; the Nazi boast is vain and false. A great concentration of German mechanisation and air power forced the breach in our lines in the frontier region, and through this breach poured, unchallenged for 24 hours, the full force of Nazi might. But our troops have fallen back fighting where the lines have had to be straightened, or have remained at their posts where the lines are being held. Just so the glorious old Army had to fall back in those equally dangerous and critical first weeks of the last war when the ex-Kaiser in his arrogance ordered his host to trample upon the "contemp-tible English army." Within a few weeks those "Old Contemptibles" helped to stay and turn back the German armies almost from the walls of Paris, and shnitered for ever the German General Staff's visions of rapid and easy conquest.

Our men to-day are sons of the "Old Contemptibles"—men of the same breed and temper. Unlike the heroes who faced and held the furv of the enemy's onslaught in 1914. they are buoyed up by the knowledge that behind them there stand ready the resources of Britain, marshalled by three years of preparation and the determination of the civil population, and all the virgin strength of the Dominions. They will not prove less stubborn in defence, or less rendy at the right moment to turn upon and drive buck

In England there is no panic and no semblance of panic. The British people are fully aware, we believe, that the situation is grave and even critical, but they look at the facts with steady eyes. They had hoped that the great efforts of the French, British and Belgian troops would have checked earlier and completely the onslaught of the enemy, but the very magnitude and novelty of the Blitzkrieg rendered inevitable the withdrawal to lines disappointingly for behind the frontier and desperate-

A country yokel went one evening to a dentist and asked to have a tooth extracted. The dentist a examined his mouth and remarked, "Gas will cost you about ten shillings." "I couldna pay that," pro-tested the yokel. "I'll just wait and have it out by daylight."

An economical Scot visited a dentist and inquired:- "Will you loosen a tooth for me, please?" "But why only loosen it?" asked the astonished dentist, "Weel, then I could get it out myself," was the reply.

Invasion Of Eire Feared

Commons Questions To Be Made

LONDON, May 22 (Reuter). -The possibility of a German invasion of Eire is causing concern to many members of the House of Commons, "Reuter's" Parliam entary correspondent.

The question was discussed at a meeting of Conservative members tonight. It was decided to ask the Premier to receive a deputation to discuss the maiter.

The problem is regarded as urgent because of the presence of Germans in Ireland, especially the German Legation, and because of the activity of Irish extremists in Ireland. Questions will be put to Mr.

Churchill in the House of Commons to-morrow.

The high standard of play in Club cricket is rarely in Hongkong. No one in Hongkong is over. recognised. Most people look on English cricket as an affair of counties, with a few Clubs playing somewhere out of the usual line of vision, but these week-end games provide bright play and quick results in comparison to the sometimes dull play of the three-day county matches.

The position is not comparable to that of Australia, where the mainstay of the game is the Urini Club-programme in which all the leading players take part. A player makes his/name with a Club before he is noticed for selection by his State for inclusion in the Sheffield Shield matches.

In England, the county if the Club, and only members of county Clubs ever see first class cricket. Hitler Can't Face Another Winter

LONDON, May 22 (Reuter). -The policy of economic warfare is having a marked effect in Germany, in some respects to greater degree than was thought possible.

According to information reaching London, it is fairly certain that Hitler's immense gamble on the Western Front has been launched because he cannot see his way through another winter.

Provisions Explained To Commons :

LONDON, May 22 (Reuter). _Sir John Anderson moved the second reading of the Treachery to-day. The main provision of the Bill provides the death penalty in certain grave cases of espionage or subolage performed with intent to help the enemy.

Sir John explained that the Bill was designed to regularise the legal position and to -fill some possible loopholes in the existing emergency

One important point was that it was thought desirable to make provision to enable enemy allens to be tried in suitable cases by court martials.

Trial By Jury Any Brilish subject or neutral alien, however, would retain the right to trial by jury. Mr. G. M. Garro-Jones interposed with a question about enemy aliens who possibly arrive in uniform. Sir John Anderson sald that if the country were invaded and the ordinary processes of law ceased to function in areas of active military operations there should be available the power for dealing effectively with cases of treachery as covered by the present Bill. The measure, he sald, was designed to meet such a situation.

(Liberal) supported the Bill. . Given Second Reading LONDON, May 22 (Reuter) .--During the debate in the House of Commons on the Treachery Bill, the second reading of which was adopted without division the Attorney General showed how parachutists will be affected by the measure.

If the enemy descended in clain clothes, unarmed and not as part of the attack but hoping to commit esplonage, he would be subject to the provisions of the Bill.

However people descending in plain clothes as part of the attacking force would be dealt with in the same way as uniformed attackers. But there would be the added disadvantage of not having the privileges which uniformed attacking soldiers are given under International Law.

Read For Third Time LONDON, May 22 (Reuter).-The Treachery Bill was read a third time in the House of Commons and sent to the House of Lords who will pass all the singes to-morrow.

Blank Cheque For Japan

Germany And The Dutch E.I.

LONDON, May 23 (Reuter).—The Tokyo correspondent of the "Times" states that Dr. Ott, the German Ambassador, yesterday informed Mr. Arita that the German Government "are not interested in the Dutch East Indies problem.

The statement was made in answer to the Japanese declaration on May

The newspaper "Kokumin Shim-bun" interprets the reply, as being a "blank power of attorney." On its face, the German declaration conveys firstly, that Germany waives any claim to the Dutch Indics which might arise from the German conquest of Holland.

Secondly, she agrees to any action Japan may take. The implications of this declaration go much further than a straight forward reply to the Japanese statement required. The German reply pointedly knores the status quo and disclaims any interest in the fale of colonies which are ostensibly under German

By giving Japan more than she asked for, Ribbentrop is displaying to her the advantages of abandoning neutrality. His action will reinforce the group which, at the start of the war, demanded that Japan should ally herself with Germany. Their efforts foiled decisively at the time and as long as the present Cabinet remains in power, it is unlikely that the national policy of non-involvement will be changed, but the Allies must expect greater pressure to induce them to conform with Japan's policy in China.
